GIRL IN NIGHTIE TOSSED FROM

CELESTE TO HOWARD CARROLL. Because the Yacht Seemed Badly Smashed safe-She Chummed With Strangers and Policemen and Was Mighty Game. There was a collision on the Sound last night between the schooner yacht Celeste and the Starin Line excursion boat Howard Carroll. While the two boats were locked together Isabella Beaudrias, the two-and-ahalf-year-old daughter of I. J. Beaudrias City Attorney of Yonkers, was tossed i her nightgown from the yacht to the deck of the Carroll and, unhurt, she had a free ride to Cortlandt street, this city.

While she was sailing down the East River this bulletin was posted at Police Headquarters for the information of newspaper reporters:

Telephone message from 168 Melrose: My schooner yacht has been run into by the excursion boat Howard Carroll. When the boats struck I put my two-and-a-half-yearold girl, Isabelle Beaudrias, on excursion boat, which I think landed at the foot of Thirty first street, East River. Will you have police take care of her until I go down for her?

The telephone message came from Mr. Beaudrias, who chartered the yacht Celeste last spring. With his wife, his motherin-law, Mrs. Hart; her daughter, Catherine Hart, and the two Beaudrias children, Helene, 1 year old, and Isabelle, he left Yonkers vesterday to go to New London.

of College Point, about 8 o'clock last night, the Celeste fell in with the Howard Carroll which was making her homeward trip from Glen Island with 800 passengers aboard. Capt. David Marcus of the Howard Carroll, says he signalled the Celeste that he would keep his course, but that apparently his signals were misunderstood on the vacht.

At any rate the yacht made no attempt, according to Capt. Marcus, to come about and tried to cut across the bow of the Carroll. The boats came together head on. The bow of the Howard Carroll was stove in and the forward rail on the upper deck was damaged. The Celeste's bowsprit was smashed and her jib and staysail carried

As seen from the Howard Carroll it appeared that the crew and Mr. Beaudrias were on deck and the other members of the party at dinner in the cabin. When the boats came together there was great excitement.

Mrs. Beaudrias, so the people on the Carroll said, rushed out of the cabin and ossed Isabelle into the arms of Christian Schwartz, one of the excursionists, who was standing forward. The distance wasn't great, as the Celeste was still alongside the Carroll.

Hedley Fenton, the negro cook of the Celeste, lost his head and got aboard the Carroll, just how no one noticed in the confusion. Gustav Linston, the jib sheet man of the Celeste, was hanging over the bowsprit of the vacht and he also dropped on the deck of the Carroll.

There was almost'a panic on the Howard Carroll, and not much attention was paid to the Celeste when the boats parted Several women fainted and there was an proar among the children.

First Mate Henry Moore quieted the passengers on the main deck and Capt. Marcus, with the assistance of Major Charles H. Hudgins of Matthews county, Virginia who served under "Jeb" Stuart in the Black Horse Cavalry, assured those on the upper deck that there was no danger. It was half an hour before the excitement subsided.

Then the passengers became interested in the little girl who had been taken from the yacht. She was in charge of Jennie Brown, the colored stewardess, and seemed to be perfectly contented. She never whimpered once all the way down and when the boat finally landed at the foot of Cortlandt street she was plaving games with the other children on the boat. A policeman from Headquarters was waiting at the landing and he took the little girl, the stewardess and the negro cook and sailor of the Celeste to the Church street station. Isabelle at once made herself at home the station. She was playing dominor in the back room with nine policemen when Mr. and Mrs. Beaudrias, who had got into communication with Police Headhev had landed from the Celeste.

Mr. and Mrs. Beaudrias were very angr the way Capt. Marcus of the Howard arroll had acted. I was at the wheel and Capt. Fred H Montgomery, the owner of the boat, from whom I chartered her, was on deck when the collision occurred," Mr. Beaudreas said. "All the other members of my family were on deck except the two children, who were asleep in the cabin.

"We expected that the Howard Carroll would steer out of our way, but she didn't and we struck practically head on. My wife ran into the cabin and got Ise

Capt. Marcus of the Carroll said he paid no attention to the yeart after the cellision.

no attention to the yacht after the collision, because he saw that she wasn't in bad hape and he had 800 excited passenger hands

Mr. Beaudrias and his family have been ruising in the Celeste, which is 80 feet over all and is fitted with auxiliary engines, practically all summer. She has a crew of six men. Commodore A. J. Prime of Yonkers Corinthian Yacht Club and or Walsh and his family of Yonkers were to have gone on the Celeste yesterday but they missed her and went by train to New London, where they were to have met her this morning.

Mr. Beaudrias said that the accident his boat would not stop him from continuing the cruise to-day.

After landing her passengers at Cortlandt street the Howard Carroll went to Port

Richmond, Staten Island, for repairs.

Macedonia is extending. The Bulgarian Exarch was invited by the Grand Vizier of Turkey to exert a pacifying influence on the Macedonian Christians, but he declined on the ground that such admonitions would not be regarded.

The Bulgarian Government, through its diplomatic agents, has asked the Powers to use their influence to induce the Porte not to employ bashi-bazouks in suppressing the rebellion. LONDON, Aug. 8.-The Times corre-

The Ministers at Constantinople are much disturbed and are issuing new orders for military movements.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times thinks that the long predicted general rising in Macedonia has begun in earnest. He cites among the serious features of the situation discontent and insubordination

MORE RUSSIANS SHOT DOWN. Troops Fire on Rioters at Nikolaleit, Killing Twelve.

UNIONS THE NATION'S DANGER. German Minister of Commerce Gives England Some Advice.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN

BERLIN, Aug. 7.-A newspaper here motes Herr Moeller, Minister of Commerce and Industry, as predicting that unless Great Britain enacts legislation controlling trades unions she will find herself perma-nently out of the industrial race with Germany and the United States.

To the monopolistic practices of the unions, Herr Moeller attributes the fact that Great Britain is behind Germany in her dock facilities. Even the docks at Liverpool are hopelessly inferior to those t Hamburg, Bremen and other German ports. Liverpool is still using the load-ing and docking arrangements that were ogue forty years ago. The Minister says that German merchants and manufacturers will sooner or later find a wider market even in Great Britain and the British colonies, but one condition of heir success is that German capital mus the hare-brained vagaries of comavoid mercial America.

STOLE PREACHERS' AID FUNDS

TREASURER OF NEW ENGLAND METHODISTS TOOK $75,000.

Willard S. Allen of Boston Flees to Montreal and Writes a Letter-Confesses His Embezzlement-lised the Money in Speculation-Only $2,000 Is Left.

BOSTON, Aug. 7 .- Willard S. Allen, aged 81, treasurer of the Preachers' Aid Society of the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church for twelve years, is a self-confessed embezzler of the funds intrusted to him to the extent of over $75,000.

The funds of this society, which are for the aid of indigent Methodist clergymen and their families, are practically wiped out. Only $2,500 in stocks remains in the safe deposit box hired by the society.

Allen has been missing since last Saturday and it is believed that he is in Canada. When he left home that day he told his wife that he was going to the Methodist campmeeting at Alton Bay, N. H. Instead of doing so he continued to Montreal, where he wrote a letter and mailed it on Sunday to the Rev. C. H. Spencer, pastor of the Saratoga Street Methodist Church in East Boston, where he was a communicant and one of the leaders in church work.

Mr. Spencer was on his vacation in Vermont. Allen made a complete confession in the letter, saying he had jost the funds of the society in speculation. He closed by asking Mr. Spencer to notify his family and the other officers of the aid society. Allen's whereabouts is not known, but the police have been appealed to by the society and are looking for him.

The missing man is a brother-in-law of E. Benjamin Andrews, former president of Brown University and now chancellor of Nebraska University. During the last twenty-nine years he has been clerk of the East Boston Court and for sixteen years he was a member of the Boston School Commission.

He has lived in East Boston for more than 40 years and no citizen of that section of the city bore a more respected name. Officers of the society are of the opinion that Allen has been speculating systematically with the society's money for years, and they are of the opinion that a move recently made to have the treasurer put under bonds and possibly recent heavy losses in the stock market convinced him that further concealment of his dishonesty was impossible, and flight followed.

The society is incorporated and Allen did not get a salary. Last March it was voted to have the treasurer furnish bonds. Allen has appeared somewhat sensitive about this move, which was not made from any suspicion that he was using the funds. but because it was more businesslike.

From investigation and information received the other officers of the society believe that Allen has been using the money to margin stocks, and that in some way he managed to get hold of securities temporarily, so that when the auditor examined them every March he would find

POLICE HEARD THEY MIGHT RAID FREEHOLD JAIL

And Get Their Leader Out-Twenty-five Crooks Gathered In by a Dragnet Raid on the Lower East Side-Cops'il Hold 'Em at Headquarters for a While.

A suspicion that the members of the notorious Monk Eastman gang might be contemplating a jail-breaking expedition into New Jersey to free their leader, who is a prisoner at Freehold, caused Inspector McClusky to send out twenty of his detectives last night to round up every member of the gang that they could lay their hands

The detectives sallied forth in pairs and dragnetted the Bowery, First and Second avenues and some of the cross streets on the lower East Side that have become known as haunts of the gang. The expedition was successful in every respect and resulted in the placing of twenty-five plug-uglies under lock and key at Police Headquarters.

It is possible that a few fellows chanced along who were neither crooks nor members of the gang, but then the detectives were in a hurry, and they are sure of the majority anyhow by having their pictures in the rogues' gallery.

Some of the victims of the raid did no surrender without resistance. In several cases the captors had to do some quick work with their billies before submission was enforced. In all cases, however, the rows ended with victories for the sleuths. Among the best-known of the mer brought to Headquarters are Sam Gordon, alias Dick Chinsky, a pickpocket of considerable prominence in the world of graft; "Kid" Carter, whose distinction is of similar nature; Sam Sulkes, better known as "Sheeny Sam"; "Whitey" Casper, who is venerable in the color of his hair, and "Little

The rest of the captured bunch included alleged crooks of every age, specialty and degree of wickedness. Some were merely strong-arm men, according to the police and the Rogues' Gallery records.

All the prisoners will be arraigned in the Tombs police court this morning as suspicious persons, and an effort will be made on the part of the police to hold them for forty-eight hours at least.

Inspector McClusky could not be seen st night, but some of his lieutenants said that the fear that the gang might try to get Monk Eastman out of jail by force was based on information that had come to the inspector from members who thought that would be carrying matters a little too far.

NO VISITORS SEE EASTMAN. Freehold Authorities Guarding Against Rescue by New York Thugs.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Aug. 7 .- "Monk" Eastman and Joseph Brown, who are charged with assaulting James McMahon, coachman for David Lamar, at Lamar's instance, spent a quite day in jail here, and were not allowed to see any one except a lawyer.

They complained because they were kept in their cells, saying they needed exercise in the corridor such as the other prisoners are allowed, and it is probable that they will be taken out at intervals and allowed to exercise under the eyes of the Warden for a short time in the barred corridor.

They are carefully guarded, the authorities having learned a lesson from the escape of murderer Bullock from the jail here about two years ago. So far the town has enjoyed immunity from the presence of any New York thugs who might attempt to liberate Eastman and Brown.

All prisoners committed to the iail for short terms will be carefully scrutinized and searched, as it is thought that the Cherry Hill gang may have some of their number committed on trivial charges and thus get assistance to "Monk" and Brown.

ARRESTED WOMAN IN OVERALLS. She Passed for a Man All Right Until She

Drank Whiskey, She Says. A young woman who was masquerading as a man was arrested by Policeman Browman of the West Thirty-seventh street station at Tenth avenue and Thirty-sixth street last night. The policeman saw a crowd chasing what he thought were three men and he grabbed one of them. The supposed man turned out to be a young woman wearing a black serge coat, blue overalls, a straw hat and a bright red tie. She said she was Annie Brown of 671 Eighth avenue. She told the sergeant that she had met two men on the street, who got her to dress as a man for a lark. "Then we went to a Tenth avenue saloo and stood up against the bar and drank some whiskey," she said. "The whiskey made me cough and some of the men in the place got on. Then they chased us."

CANTOR WON'T RUN AGAIN. He Tells a Friend That Duty Now Calls Him to Private Life.

Borough President Jacob A. Cantor departed yesterday for Saratoga for another vacation. Before his departure he said to a friend that he had resolved not to be a candidate for reëlection in any event and hat he would issue a formal statement to that effect on his return to the city in September. He remarked that he had been in the public service for many years and now felt it was his duty to attend to his law practice. Mr. Cantor's declination will leave vacancy for the fusion ticket. Friends of Charles V. Fornes, president of the Board of Aldermen, said that he'd rather run for that office again than to take Cantor's place for Borough President. He regards his present place as a little safer, as he will then run for it in the whole of Greater New York. The probability that Tammany will carry Manhattan is evident to Mr Fornes and offers a substantial promise to Tammany. Dewey, the absconding cashier of the Merchants and Farmers' Bank of Newbern, had committed suicide, but it could not be verified. The directors of the bank want Dewey to come back badly enough to offer a reward of $4,000 for his arrest. Dewey speculated on the wrong side of the cotton market and doctored the bank's books to cover his stealings. The shortage now amounts to $130,000, but the directors are not sure they have touched bottom in the matter.

Joran's Companion Also Cut, but Neither Was Badly Hort Story That They In terfered to Protect a Beggar Woman From Insult-Police Kept It Quiet.

William J. Moran, assistant secentary to Mayor Low, was stabbed in the leg in a fight with a crowd of Italian roughs at Madison and Catherine streets last night He was not seriously hurt, and after having his wounds dressed by a physician he went

The police of the Madis on street station made an effort to keep the fact that Moran had been stabbed as quiet as possible. The entry was put on the blotter and it was said at the station late last night that Moran gave the name of Matthew Dobbins of 108 Madison street. Dobbins is a confidential clerk to Mayor

A man who said he was Louis Snyder of 36 Catherine street was with Moran. He was stabbed in the back, but, like Moran, was not badly hurt.

Low, but he was not with Moran.

There are two stories as to what led up to the stabbing. In one Moran and his friend Snyder are described as having started to tease an old woman when several young men interfered and there was a fight. The other version makes Moran and Snyder appear in a better light. They day, and after Raglan, purchased on were standing on the corner when the Wednesday by Gebhard, won the Spinaway old woman came along and asked for pennies. A crowd of young men were standing on the corner and they began to have

The crowd set upon them and there was free fight. One young man tackled Moran, and the Mayor's assistant secretary punched him on the jaw, knocking him down. Somebody yelled "Police!" and an opening was made in the crowd, through which Moran and Snyder started to escape. They were followed by two young men, each of whom drew a knife.

One of the men slashed at Moran, missing his back, but cutting the side of his leg. The other man jabbed for the back of Snyder's head, but Snyder ducked and the knife struck his collar, cutting it and tearing the back of his neck. In the mêlée the old woman was knocked

Out in the Night. BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 7 .- Soon after 10 o'clock to-night several cannon shots were heard here, and it is believed that it means that some decision has been reached between the two naval squadrons working out the search problem off the New England

After the first stray shots there was heavy cannonading that seemed to come from two opposing forces. Men along the shore here say that the sound came from up at Lamerne, but there seems to be little reason for the enemy to be up there, as the channel is only eight feet deep, not deep enough for the battleships to come through To others it sounded as if the firing were off Schoodie Point in the open sea. If this is the case there are two suppositionseither the enemy was trying to overpowe the two scout boats. Newport and Hartford, or the enemy ran into the fighting force of Admiral Barker's squadron. which is out near Egg Rock Light. The firing ceased after about twenty minutes. In case the enemy tried to run in here to-night the chances are against their success. The land station tried to communicate with different points along the shore, but all telephone and telegraph operators had closed for the night. Northeast Harbor heard no firing, nor did Elisworth, and they were the only two places that could be reached. The shore officers here sent out the tug Nina, which was stationed here for an emergency, as soon as she could be prepared. The night is an ideal one for action. A heavy rainstorm at 9 o'clock beat down the fog. It is as dark a night as the enemy could wish for. A report was going the rounds here to-day hat the enemy had been sighted by one of the destroyers of the outer line, but at readquarters they had not heard of such a report, and did not believe it. The report had it that the enemy had been sighted and had steamed out to sea ere were two tugs in from the fleet to-day one this morning with the mail orderlies but neither

In Which a Cripple Is Knocked Down and Has His Hip Fractured. Prince, one of the lions in a menageria at Coney Island, escaped from his cage last night and suddenly appeared on the boardwalk, which was crowded with pleasure seekers. The beast is only 18 months old. born in captivity, and is said to be as tame as a cat. But Prince has just the same kind of growl as the most ferocious lion of the desert. When he found himself unexpectedly surrounded by a lot of creatures who ran about shricking, he growled a warning for them not to come too near. The more he growled the worse the people scrambled to get out of reach, until the place was turned into a perfect bedlam. The keepers say they knew that it would be enough to take him by the neck and drag him away, but to reassure the scared mob of sightseers they marched out in at Mahanoy City, three at Tamaqua and full force, armed with pitchforks and long iron rods and arranged themselves in a close circle about Prince. The lion was restored to his cage in the most impressive manner possible, a derrick official returns of yesterday's State Demo- being rigged up for the purpose. It took an hour to do it that way.

The incident received a serious turn by first estimates. Money is relected to an accident that happened in the panic to Saul Mashe, a teacher of languages, who for lives at 669 Sackett street, Brooklyn. Mashe is a cripple and could not get out of the way when the people ran for places of safety. He was knocked down trampled on and received a fractu safety the left hip. He was taken to the Con Island Hospital
